1. Document Control and Purpose

1.1 Purpose of this profile

This document is the official company profile of SESNAK LIMITED. It is prepared so that clients, partners, government offices, financiers and members of the public can understand who we are, what we do, how we are led, and why Solwezi trusts our name in labour supply and technical support services.

The profile is also an internal reference. Supervisors, union representatives and new staff should be able to open it and see, in plain language, the work of the company and the duties attached to each senior office. A company that cannot explain its own roles cannot supervise them. SESNAK LIMITED therefore records those roles in writing.

1.2 Scope

This profile covers the company as a commercial enterprise. It is not a substitute for the constitution of the SESNAK LIMITED Workers' Union, for individual contracts of employment, or for site-specific method statements. Those documents remain in force in their own right. Where this profile describes industrial relations, it does so at company level only.

1.4 How to use the letterhead

Every official letter, memorandum, quotation, contract cover, disciplinary notice and external submission issued in the name of SESNAK LIMITED shall carry the company letterhead. The letterhead places the logo at the top, the company name beneath it, and a single service line describing our four pillars of work. Contact particulars — Solwezi Lodge Room 2, sesnakltd@gmail.com, and the two company cell numbers — sit in the footer or the address block. The date and reference number sit below the heading, never inside the logo block. The specimen at the end of this profile is the standard.

2. About SESNAK LIMITED

2.1 Who we are

SESNAK LIMITED is a Zambian company based in Solwezi, the commercial and mining centre of North-Western Province. The registered operating address is Solwezi Lodge, Room 2. The company specialises in the hiring of labour to the mines and to mine-support contractors. That core business is strengthened by three technical pillars in which the company has built a practical reputation: boiler making, automotive mechanics, and transport logistics.

We exist to put the right people, with the right trade skill and the right safety discipline, onto sites that cannot afford idle plant or empty shift lines. Mining is a twenty-four-hour industry. A labour partner that arrives late, sends the wrong trade, or ignores site rules is not a partner. SESNAK LIMITED is built to be dependable.

2.2 What we stand for in the market

Solwezi has many contractors. What distinguishes a leading company is not a slogan. It is whether a supervisor can call at night and receive a competent person the next morning; whether a damaged service vehicle returns to the road; whether a fabricated bracket fits the first time; and whether wages, statutory contributions and discipline are handled without confusion.

SESNAK LIMITED

Labour Hire · Boiler Making · Automotive Mechanics · Transport Logistics

SESNAK LIMITED presents itself as one of the leading companies in Solwezi in the combined field of mine labour hire and allied mechanical services. That claim is a standard we work to keep, not a decoration. Leadership under Mr Ernest Muwowo, day-to-day control under Mr Zulu, and people administration under Mr Fred Kasonda exist so that the standard can be kept.

2.3 Our offer, in one page of meaning

- Labour hire for mines and mine-support operations — artisans, operators, drivers, general workers, and specialised trades as required by the client.
- Boiler making — fabrication, plate work, cutting, welding, site repairs and workshop manufacture of components used in plant and infrastructure.
- Automotive mechanics — diagnosis, service and repair of light vehicles, commercial vehicles and selected plant used in operations and logistics.
- Transport logistics — movement of people, tools, materials and support cargo in and around Solwezi and connected mine corridors, under controlled dispatch.

These four lines are not four separate companies. They are one organisation. A fitter hired to a plant may need a fabricated part from our workshop. A crew going on shift may need a serviced vehicle and a driver who knows the route. The value of SESNAK LIMITED is that these needs can be coordinated from one management table.

2.4 Legal and civic standing

SESNAK LIMITED operates as a limited company under the laws of Zambia. We conduct business subject to the Employment Code Act, occupational safety law, road traffic law, tax and statutory contribution law, and the site rules of every mine or contractor that engages us. The company recognises the SESNAK LIMITED Workers' Union as the voice of organised labour within the enterprise and expects management and the union to deal with each other through protocol and respect.

3. Vision, Mission and Core Values

3.1 Vision

To be Solwezi's most trusted name in mine labour hire and mechanical support — a company that clients call first because the people we send are competent, the work we fabricate holds, the vehicles we release are fit for the road, and the promises we make are kept.

3.2 Mission

To supply reliable labour and technical services to the mining industry and its support chain in North-Western Province by recruiting and deploying skilled Zambian workers, running disciplined workshops, moving people and materials safely, and administering employment with fairness, legality and order.

3.3 Core values

Safety first

No contract, no bonus and no rush order is more important than a person returning home unharmed. Every deployment, every weld, every vehicle release and every night shift is judged first by whether it is safe. The

Labour Hire · Boiler Making · Automotive Mechanics · Transport Logistics

Chief Executive Officer sets this tone. The Manager enforces it on the ground. Human Resources records competence and will not process a placement that is known to be unfit.

Reliability

Mines plan production around people being present. SESNAK LIMITED treats punctual deployment, completed repairs and honouring of contract numbers as a matter of honour. A crew that does not arrive is a production loss for the client and a reputation loss for us.

Skill and workmanship

Labour hire is not the dumping of bodies on a gate. Boiler making is not guesswork. Mechanics is not parts-changing without diagnosis. Transport is not driving without a plan. We prefer a smaller number of competent people to a large number of unprepared names.

Respect and protocol

Workers, supervisors, union representatives, clients and community leaders will be spoken to with respect. Grievances follow procedure. Instructions follow the chain of command. The company does not conduct its industrial relations through shouting, rumour or public humiliation.

Local strength

We are a Solwezi company serving a Solwezi economy. Preference is given, wherever competence allows, to local men and women who can build a working life in North-Western Province. Training and trade growth are part of how we remain leading rather than temporary.

Integrity

Hours claimed must be hours worked. Materials booked must be materials used. Statutory contributions must be remitted. A quotation must match the work that will be done. Integrity is not a poster on a wall. It is the way payroll, stores and client invoices are prepared.

4. Solwezi Presence and Mining Context

4.1 Why Solwezi matters

Solwezi is not a side office. It is the home of SESNAK LIMITED because it is the home of large-scale copper mining and of the contractors, workshops, transporters and housing economies that mining creates. Kansanshi and the wider North-Western mineral belt have turned Solwezi into one of Zambia's most important industrial towns. Labour, fabrication, vehicle repair and logistics are not optional extras in that town. They are the daily machinery of production.

The company keeps its operating base at Solwezi Lodge, Room 2, so that clients, workers and civic offices know where the institution sits. A company that wishes to lead in Solwezi must understand shift patterns, induction rules, fatigue, the pressure of shutdowns, the shortage of certain trades, and the social weight that mine work places on families. SESNAK LIMITED is organised around those realities.

4.2 Position in the local market

SESNAK LIMITED is one of the leading companies in Solwezi in its chosen field. That standing rests on four practical facts. First, we concentrate on mine labour hire rather than trying to be everything to everyone. Second, we keep workshop capability so that hired labour is not stranded without tools, parts or fabricated support. Third, we run transport as a controlled service, not as an informal side activity. Fourth, we maintain a visible leadership structure — Chief Executive Officer, Manager and Human Resources — so that a client always knows who is accountable.

Labour Hire · Boiler Making · Automotive Mechanics · Transport Logistics

4.3 Who we serve

- Mining houses and their principal contractors requiring surge labour, shutdown crews, replacement trades and standing labour complements.
- Engineering and maintenance contractors who need boiler makers, welders, mechanics and general workers aligned to site standards.
- Transport and site-support operations that need drivers, assistants and vehicles that can be kept on the road.
- Local businesses and civic users who require fabrication, vehicle repair or organised movement of goods and people within the district.

4.4 How we work with a mine site

Engagement normally begins with a scope: trade, numbers, duration, shift system, induction requirements, tools and personal protective equipment. Human Resources, under Mr Fred Kasonda, checks papers, competence and medical fitness. The Manager, Mr Zulu, confirms that supervisors, transport and workshop backup exist. The Chief Executive Officer, Mr Ernest Muwowo, holds the commercial relationship and the authority to commit the company. Once people are on site, timekeeping, conduct and safety remain a shared duty between SESNAK LIMITED supervision and the client's site rules.

We do not treat a mine gate as the end of our responsibility. A person we place remains our employee. If there is a grievance, a safety concern, an injury or a disciplinary issue, the company must be reachable and must act.

5. Core Service: Hiring of Labour for the Mines

5.1 The heart of the company

The hiring of labour in the mines is the principal business of SESNAK LIMITED. Everything else in this profile supports that business or stands beside it as a related strength. Clients come to us when they need people who can work under mining discipline: on time, in the correct personal protective equipment, with traceable identity and with a trade that matches the requisition.

5.2 Categories of labour we organise

Requirements change with the life of a pit, a plant and a project. Typical categories include general workers for housekeeping and support; semi-skilled assistants; coded welders and boiler makers; automotive and plant mechanics; drivers of light and commercial vehicles; operators where the client specifies the class of machine; and selected administrative or stores support when a contract calls for it. We do not invent a trade a person does not hold. We match the person to the ticket.

5.3 The labour-hire cycle

A clean labour-hire cycle has seven steps. One: the client issues a requisition with trade, number, duration and site rules. Two: Human Resources searches the existing pool and, if needed, recruits. Three: documents, references and medical or induction requirements are checked. Four: the Manager confirms logistics — reporting time, transport, tools and supervisor. Five: the worker is deployed and introduced to site control. Six: timekeeping, conduct and safety are monitored for the life of the placement. Seven: the placement is closed with a clear record, so that the next call can be answered faster.

SESNAK LIMITED

Labour Hire · Boiler Making · Automotive Mechanics · Transport Logistics

5.4 What “good” looks like in labour hire

Good labour hire is invisible when it works. The client sees a full shift. The worker sees a fair engagement. The company sees a contract that can be invoiced without dispute. Bad labour hire is highly visible. It looks like a person who cannot pass induction, a no-show after payday, a fight at the hostel, a forged ticket, or a supervisor who cannot be found when an incident happens.

SESNAK LIMITED therefore invests in the unglamorous parts of the work: files that are complete, a phone that is answered, a list of people who are actually available, and a Human Resources office that will not send a name merely to fill a number.

5.5 Responsibilities across the three offices

Mr Ernest Muwowo, as Chief Executive Officer, owns the client relationship and the decision to accept or refuse a labour package that the company cannot safely deliver. Mr Zulu, as Manager, owns deployment, site supervision and the coordination of transport and workshop support around the labour force. Mr Fred Kasonda, as Human Resources, owns recruitment, contracts, statutory compliance, discipline and the welfare file of every person sent to a mine.

If those three offices pull in different directions, the worker on the night shift pays the price. This profile records the division of roles so that they pull in the same direction.

6. Core Service: Boiler Making

6.1 Why boiler making sits inside a labour company

Mines and contractors do not only need hands. They need metal that has been cut, rolled, welded and fitted to a drawing or to a broken piece of plant. SESNAK LIMITED keeps boiler making as a core competence so that labour hire is backed by real workshop skill. A leading Solwezi company in this space cannot send welders to a site if it does not itself respect the trade.

6.2 Scope of boiler-making work

Our boiler-making work covers workshop fabrication and site support. Typical tasks include plate marking and cutting; rolling and forming; welding of structural and plate assemblies; manufacture and repair of chutes, hoppers, guards, frames, brackets and platforms; preparation of replacement sections during shutdowns; and assistance to maintenance crews who need a fabricated part faster than a distant supplier can deliver.

Every job is judged by fit, strength, neatness of weld and safety of the finished item. A guard that does not guard, or a platform that flexes under a person, is not workmanship. It is a future incident.

6.3 People, plant and method

Boiler making depends on coded or competent welders, platers who can read a mark, and helpers who understand heat, clamp and grind. The Manager ensures that the workshop has usable machines, consumables and a place where work can be done without endangering the next bench. Human Resources ensures that the people assigned to a coded task actually hold the competence the task requires. The Chief Executive Officer decides which classes of work the company will accept, so that SESNAK LIMITED does not sign for a pressure or structural class it is not ready to carry.

SESNAK LIMITED

Labour Hire · Boiler Making · Automotive Mechanics · Transport Logistics

6.4 Interface with mine labour hire

A client may ask for boiler makers as hired labour on their site. A client may also ask SESNAK LIMITED to fabricate in our workshop and deliver. Both requests are legitimate. They are managed differently. On-site hire follows the labour cycle in Section 5. Workshop fabrication follows a job card, a material list, an inspection of the finished item and a delivery note. Mixing the two without paperwork is how tools disappear and invoices are disputed.

6.5 Quality standard

The company standard is simple to say and hard to fake: measure twice, cut once, weld to the procedure, inspect before release, and do not send a piece that the maker would refuse to stand under. Supervisors who pass bad work to keep a date will answer to the Manager. Repeat failure of workmanship is a Human Resources matter as well as a technical one.

7. Core Service: Automotive Mechanics

7.1 Why vehicles decide whether a labour company works

Labour that cannot reach the gate is not labour. Materials that sit in town because a truck is down are not logistics. SESNAK LIMITED treats automotive mechanics as a core service because our own operations, and many of our clients' operations, stand or fall on vehicles that start, steer, stop and carry a load without becoming a hazard.

7.2 Scope of mechanical work

The automotive section services and repairs light passenger vehicles and commercial vehicles used in crew transport and support haulage. Work includes scheduled service, diagnosis of running faults, brake and steering safety repairs, electrical running faults within the competence of the section, replacement of worn service items, and pre-despatch inspection before a vehicle is released to a driver. Selected plant support may be undertaken where the company has the tools and the trade skill for that machine class.

We do not pretend to be a full original-equipment dealer for every brand on the Copperbelt and North-Western roads. We do commit to honest diagnosis, safe release standards and a clear report when a job is beyond the section and must go to a specialist.

7.3 Safety release rule

A vehicle with defective brakes, dangerous steering, bald tyres on a mine road, failed lights at night, or a load restraint that cannot hold, will not be released. This rule is not negotiable by a driver in a hurry or by a client who wants the vehicle "just for today". The mechanic who signs a release is signing for other people's lives. The Manager backs that mechanic. The Chief Executive Officer backs the Manager.

7.4 Link to transport logistics and labour hire

Automotive mechanics and transport logistics are sister services. Dispatch cannot issue a vehicle the workshop has marked unfit. Human Resources cannot keep a driver on the road whose licence, medical or conduct file is incomplete. When a crew is late, the first questions are simple: was the vehicle fit, was the driver present, was the route briefed, and was the reporting time realistic? Those questions belong to Mr Zulu's operating table, with technical input from the workshop and people input from Mr Fred Kasonda.

SESNAK LIMITED

Labour Hire · Boiler Making · Automotive Mechanics · Transport Logistics

7.5 Records

Every service and safety-critical repair is recorded against the vehicle, not only against a verbal memory. A leading company in Solwezi cannot manage a fleet on scraps of paper that disappear when a supervisor changes. Job cards, parts used and the name of the artisan are part of the professional standard of this section.

8. Core Service: Transport Logistics

8.1 What we mean by transport logistics

Transport logistics at SESNAK LIMITED means the planned movement of workers, tools, materials and authorised support cargo so that mine labour hire and workshop jobs happen on time. It is not informal lifting of people in the back of any available van. It is a controlled service with a purpose, a vehicle, a driver, a time and a destination.

8.2 Typical movements

- Crew transport between reporting points, accommodation areas and mine or contractor gates at shift change.
- Movement of tools, consumables and fabricated items between the workshop and site.
- Collection and delivery of parts required to keep hired labour and company vehicles productive.
- Authorised support runs within Solwezi and along connected corridors when a contract requires them.

8.3 Control of the service

Dispatch sits with operations under the Manager. A movement should be able to answer five questions before the key is turned: who is travelling, what is being carried, which vehicle is assigned, who is driving, and what time must the movement complete. If any one of those answers is missing, the run is not professional logistics. It is a gamble.

Drivers are company ambassadors on the public road and at the mine gate. Speeding, alcohol, unauthorised passengers, unsecured loads and abusive conduct are not “driver problems” only. They are company problems. Human Resources holds the licence and disciplinary file. The Manager holds the roster. The Chief Executive Officer holds the public name of SESNAK LIMITED when a vehicle carries our reputation down the road.

8.4 Fatigue and night work

Mine labour hire often lives on night shift. Transport therefore lives on night shift as well. Fatigue is treated as a safety risk equal to a bald tyre. Rosters must allow rest. A driver who has already worked beyond a safe limit is not a solution to a late crew. He is the next incident. This is one of the points on which Mr Zulu and Mr Fred Kasonda must speak to each other every week, not only after something has gone wrong.

8.5 Why this pillar keeps us leading in Solwezi

Many labour suppliers can produce a list of names. Fewer can move those names, support them with a workshop, and still have a vehicle fit for the next dawn start. SESNAK LIMITED keeps transport logistics inside the company so that our labour promise is a full promise: the person, the skill, the ride and the support.

9. Leadership: Chief Executive Officer

MR ERNEST MUWOWO

Chief Executive Officer, SESNAK LIMITED

Mr Ernest Muwowo

Chief Executive Officer

OFFICIAL LEADERSHIP PORTRAIT

Mr Ernest Muwowo is the highest executive authority of SESNAK LIMITED. He carries the commercial name of the company, the final word on contracts, and the duty to keep Solwezi's trust. This portrait is the official image of the Office of the Chief Executive Officer for the 2026 Company Profile.

9.1 Position of the office

Mr Ernest Muwowo is the Chief Executive Officer of SESNAK LIMITED. The office of CEO is the highest executive office in the company. It is the point at which strategy, commercial commitment, public reputation and final accountability meet. Staff, clients and the community may deal daily with the Manager or with Human Resources. When the question is "who carries SESNAK LIMITED?", the answer is the Chief Executive Officer.

The CEO does not hide behind titles. He is the man a mine contractor, a financier, a labour officer or a family in distress must be able to name. In Solwezi that name must stand for order. Mr Muwowo's office exists so that SESNAK LIMITED is an institution, not a collection of informal arrangements.

9.2 Purpose of the role

The purpose of Mr Muwowo's role is to set the direction of the company, to protect its name, to decide which work the company will take, to ensure that the Manager and Human Resources have the authority and the resources to perform, and to answer to the owners and to the law for the conduct of the enterprise. The CEO does not replace the Manager on the workshop floor and does not replace Human Resources on every file. The CEO makes those two offices possible and holds them to account.

9.3 Principal duties explained

Strategic leadership

Mr Muwowo determines where SESNAK LIMITED will concentrate its strength. The present concentration is clear: labour hire for the mines, supported by boiler making, automotive mechanics and transport logistics, with Solwezi Lodge Room 2 as the home base. Strategy includes whether to grow a crew size, open a new class of work, invest in workshop plant, or decline a contract that would overstretch safety or cash.

SESNAK LIMITED

Labour Hire · Boiler Making · Automotive Mechanics · Transport Logistics

Commercial authority

Only the Chief Executive Officer, or a person he has authorised in writing, may bind the company to a major client contract, a significant credit position, or a public commitment. Quotations and contract negotiations of consequence pass through this office so that the company does not promise labour it cannot field or repairs it cannot complete. A handshake that cannot be invoiced is not business. It is exposure.

Client and stakeholder relations

Mines, principal contractors, civic offices and financial institutions deal with SESNAK LIMITED as an institution. Mr Muwowo is the principal face of that institution. He maintains the relationships that allow the Manager to operate and Human Resources to recruit. When a serious complaint reaches client management, it is the CEO who must be able to answer — calmly, with facts, and without shifting blame onto men who were never given the authority to decide.

Governance, law and money

The CEO ensures that the company remains a lawful limited company: tax, licensing, insurance, statutory contributions and the proper use of company funds. He does not personally process every NAPSA line. He does ensure that Mr Fred Kasonda and finance have a system, and that the system is not a decoration. An inspectable company is a leading company.

Safety culture from the top

A safety policy that the CEO does not live is a piece of paper. Mr Muwowo's role includes stopping work that is unsafe, backing supervisors who refuse a dangerous instruction, and making it known that no client pressure will be used as an excuse for a preventable injury. If a man is hurt because the company chased a date, the injury belongs to this office.

People and industrial climate

The CEO sets the climate in which the Workers' Union and management speak to each other. He expects protocol. He does not expect silence. Serious industrial questions that cannot be closed at Human Resources or Manager level come to this office. Dignity is not a favour granted after a dispute. It is the way the company speaks on an ordinary Tuesday.

9.4 How the CEO works with the other two offices

Mr Muwowo directs Mr Zulu on operational performance: deployments met, vehicles fit, workshop jobs closed, client complaints closed. He directs Mr Fred Kasonda on the state of the workforce: contracts in order, contributions remitted, discipline consistent, recruitment equal to the work we have accepted. The three offices meet as a leadership set. They do not run three companies under one logo.

9.5 Standard of the office

The standard against which Mr Muwowo's office is judged is whether SESNAK LIMITED remains a leading Solwezi company that clients trust, workers can explain to their families, and the law can inspect without fear. Visibility without order is not leadership. Order without courage is not leadership either. The CEO's role is both.

10. Leadership: Manager

MR ZULU

Manager, SESNAK LIMITED

Mr Zulu

Manager — Operations, Workshop and Transport

Mr Zulu is the operating centre of SESNAK LIMITED. If the Chief Executive Officer owns the direction of the company, the Manager owns the day. Deployments, workshop output, transport movements and site supervision sit on this desk. This is the official 2026 portrait of the Manager.

10.1 Position of the office — the strength of the role

Mr Zulu is the Manager of SESNAK LIMITED. This is not a ceremonial title and it is not a messenger's job. It is the strongest operating office in the company. When a client asks "who is running the job?", the working answer is Mr Zulu. When a crew is short at the gate, when a vehicle is marked unfit, when a fabrication is late for a shutdown, when a supervisor's radio is silent — the first accountable name is the Manager.

The strength of this office is simple and heavy: nothing the company has promised on paper becomes real until Mr Zulu turns it into a plan, a roster, a vehicle, a job card and a supervisor who knows what must happen before dawn. Strategy without this office is a speech. Labour hire without this office is a list of names that never arrive.

10.2 Purpose of the role

The purpose of the Manager's role is to plan, organise, direct and control the operating activities of the company so that labour is deployed as promised, boiler-making jobs are completed to standard, vehicles are kept fit and assigned correctly, and supervisors know what they are required to do each shift. The Manager is the hinge between the CEO's decisions and the people on tools. If that hinge fails, the whole door hangs.

10.3 Principal duties — stated with force

Command of the operating day

Mr Zulu owns the operating day of SESNAK LIMITED. He turns a labour requisition or a workshop order into a plan that a supervisor can hold: who reports where, which vehicle leaves at what time, which artisan takes which job card, and which spare is needed before the shift starts. Planning that produces no list is not planning. It is a meeting. The Manager's standard is a list that works at 04:30.

SESNAK LIMITED

Labour Hire · Boiler Making · Automotive Mechanics · Transport Logistics

Supervision of labour on deployment

Hired labour remains the company's labour. The Manager ensures that site supervisors, or the company's own charge-hands, know the head-count, the task and the conduct expected. He is the first operating receiver of a client complaint about performance, lateness or tools. He does not wait for the complaint to become a letter to the CEO before he acts. Delay at this level is how a small failure becomes a lost contract.

Workshop control — boiler making and automotive

The Manager is responsible for the working order of the boiler shop and the vehicle section. That includes job cards, quality of release, availability of consumables, and the discipline of the benches. He decides priority when a shutdown fabrication and a vehicle repair compete for the same hours, and he explains that priority rather than leaving artisans to guess. Guessing on a workshop floor is how a man is injured and a date is missed at the same time.

Transport and dispatch — no movement without control

Crew movements and material runs are scheduled under the Manager. He assigns vehicles only when the workshop has not marked them unfit, and drivers only when Human Resources has not marked them unavailable. He is accountable for a movement that leaves without a purpose or returns without a report. A company vehicle on the Solwezi road carries the name of SESNAK LIMITED. The Manager is the last man who may allow that name to travel unprepared.

Safety stop-authority

Mr Zulu has the authority — and the duty — to stop a job that is unsafe and to take a vehicle off the road. That authority is not borrowed from the CEO for special occasions. It is standing authority. A Manager who is afraid to stop work is not protecting production. He is preparing an incident report. The Chief Executive Officer backs this stop-authority in full.

Performance and honest reporting to the CEO

Mr Zulu reports to Mr Ernest Muwowo. The report is not theatre. It covers deployments met and missed, jobs open and closed, vehicles down, incidents, and any contract that is drifting. A Manager who only reports good news is not protecting the CEO. He is exposing him. The strength of this office includes the courage to bring bad news early, while there is still time to correct it.

Coordination with Human Resources

Operations without people files is chaos. Mr Zulu tells Mr Fred Kasonda, in time, how many of which trade will be needed, who is not performing, who is due leave, and who was involved in an incident. He does not run a private workforce beside the official one. The Manager's strength is increased, not reduced, when he works through the proper Human Resources channel.

10.4 Authority and limits

The Manager has authority to issue operating instructions, to stop a job that is unsafe, to take a vehicle off the road, to reassign supervisors, and to recommend discipline. He does not have authority to rewrite a person's contract, to ignore a statutory duty, or to bind the company to a new major client commitment. Those limits do not weaken the office. They keep it sharp. A strong Manager is strong inside a clear mandate, not outside it.

10.5 Standard of the office

Mr Zulu's office is judged by whether Monday morning looks like a company or like a crowd. Full shifts, fit vehicles, finished fabrications, answered radios and calm supervisors are the evidence. A leading Solwezi operation is not loud. It is on time.

11. Leadership: Human Resources

MR FRED KASONDA

Human Resources, SESNAK LIMITED

Mr Fred Kasonda

Human Resources

OFFICIAL LEADERSHIP PORTRAIT

Mr Fred Kasonda heads Human Resources for SESNAK LIMITED. In a labour-hire company this office is not a back room. It is a production office. Every person who walks through a mine induction is an HR product as much as an operations product. This is the official 2026 portrait of the Human Resources office.

11.1 Position of the office

Mr Fred Kasonda heads Human Resources for SESNAK LIMITED. In a labour-hire company this office is not a back room. It is a production office. Every person who walks through a mine induction, every driver who takes a crew out before dawn, and every artisan who signs a job card is a Human Resources product as much as an operations product. If the file is wrong, the deployment is wrong.

11.2 Purpose of the role

The purpose of Mr Fred Kasonda's role is to obtain, contract, administer, develop and, when necessary, separate the people of SESNAK LIMITED in a manner that is lawful, fair and useful to the work. Human Resources translates the Manager's need for numbers and trades into real human beings who can be sent, paid and supervised without shame or illegality.

11.3 Principal duties explained

Recruitment and selection for mine labour

When a requisition arrives, Human Resources searches the pool and recruits to the gap. Selection is against the trade, the site standard and the person's record. A name is not forwarded because a relative asked, or because a number must be filled by sunset with anyone who can stand. Mr Fred Kasonda's first duty in recruitment is truth: the person can do the work, or the person is not sent.

Contracts and conditions of service

Every engagement must rest on a written understanding of the work, the place, the pay basis and the rules. Human Resources prepares and controls those documents. Verbal promises that contradict the file are not company policy. They are future disputes.

Statutory compliance

Zambian employment is not complete when a person has started a shift. NAPSA, NHIMA, Workers' Compensation and the duties under the Employment Code Act sit with this office in coordination with finance. Mr Fred Kasonda's role is to keep the company able to look a labour officer in the face. Leading companies in Solwezi are inspectable.

Time, attendance and payroll input

Labour hire dies in argument over hours. Human Resources, working with site timekeeping and the Manager's supervisors, protects a clean record of who worked. Payroll input that is guessed is not administration. It is an invitation to unrest.

Discipline, grievance and dignity

Misconduct is processed, not performed as a public show. Grievances are received and answered. Mr Fred Kasonda owns the procedure. The Manager supplies the facts of the job. The CEO becomes involved when the matter threatens the company or cannot be closed at the proper level. Workers are entitled to be heard. The company is entitled to be obeyed once a lawful decision is made.

Training, competence and induction readiness

A person who cannot pass a mine induction should not have been put on the bus. Human Resources tracks tickets, licences, medicals and induction status. Where the company can raise competence — assistant to artisan, driver to a higher class, helper to plater — that path is an HR duty aligned with Mr Zulu's operational need.

Welfare and industrial relations

Mine work pulls on families. Accidents, delayed payments, bereavements and housing strain arrive at Human Resources whether the company is ready or not. Mr Fred Kasonda's role includes a calm door and a correct process. Relations with the SESNAK LIMITED Workers' Union are conducted with respect and protocol. The union is not an enemy office. It is the organised voice of people the company itself hired.

11.4 How Human Resources works with the CEO and the Manager

Mr Fred Kasonda reports on the state of the workforce to Mr Ernest Muwowo and supplies Mr Zulu with people who are actually available. He does not hide shortages until the gate is short. He does not keep a non-performer in the pool to avoid a difficult conversation. The three offices succeed only when HR is early, operations is clear, and the CEO is informed.

11.5 Standard of the office

The standard of Mr Fred Kasonda's office is a file that can be opened, a worker who knows how he is engaged, a contribution that has been remitted, and a disciplinary record that would survive a hearing. In a company whose product is people, Human Resources is not support. It is core business.

12. Organisation, Safety, Quality and Workforce

12.1 How the company is organised

SESNAK LIMITED is led by the Chief Executive Officer, Mr Ernest Muwowo. Under him the Manager, Mr Zulu, runs operations, workshops and transport. Beside operations, and reporting with a direct line that protects independence on people matters, Human Resources is led by Mr Fred Kasonda. Supervisors, charge-hands, artisans, drivers and general workers report through the operating chain. They do not take employment instructions from clients that contradict company procedure.

12.2 Health, safety and environment

SESNAK LIMITED works in an industry where a loose guard, a tired driver or a missing induction can end a life. Safety is therefore not a chapter for decoration. Pre-task talks, personal protective equipment, isolation where the client requires it, vehicle inspections, and the right to refuse unsafe work are part of employment with this company. Incidents are reported. They are not hidden to protect a monthly statistic.

12.3 Quality

Quality means the person sent matches the requisition, the weld holds, the vehicle is fit, and the invoice matches the work. Supervisors inspect. The Manager samples. Human Resources audits files. The CEO asks for evidence, not comfort.

12.4 Workforce and the Workers' Union

The company employs people as its product and as its family of work. Organised labour through the SESNAK LIMITED Workers' Union is recognised as a legitimate counterpart on conditions, dignity and procedure. Management will not substitute insult for negotiation. The union will not substitute disorder for representation. Both sides are expected to keep protocol, especially when a matter is painful.

12.5 Community standing in Solwezi

A leading company in Solwezi is judged in the township as well as at the mine gate. Wages that arrive, young people who gain a trade, vehicles that do not terrorise the road, and a management that can be found when a family is in trouble — these are the civic tests. SESNAK LIMITED accepts them.

13. Closing Statement, Contacts and Letterhead

13.1 Closing statement of the company

SESNAK LIMITED is a Solwezi company built around a simple commercial truth: mines need people, and those people need workshops, vehicles and administration behind them. We specialise in the hiring of labour for the mines. We are good at boiler making, automotive mechanics and transport logistics because those trades keep the labour promise honest.

We are led by Mr Ernest Muwowo as Chief Executive Officer, by Mr Zulu as Manager, and by Mr Fred Kasonda as Human Resources. Their roles have been explained in this profile so that no employee, client or partner has to guess who does what. Guessing is how companies drift. Written roles are how companies last.

We present SESNAK LIMITED as one of the leading companies in Solwezi in this combined field, and we accept the duty that comes with that presentation: to remain inspectable, deployable and decent.

LETTERHEAD SPECIMEN — use this block on all official correspondence

The logo is not placed beside the date stamp. The date belongs in the body block so that it remains readable. No member of staff may invent a second heading, a nickname letterhead, or a page that carries only a photocopied gear without the company name. The mark of a leading company is that its paper looks like one company.
